After high school, I plan to: I plan to go to college and study engineering and business. I would really like to play sports as well. I want to make a difference in whatever I do. I don't want my focus to be on money as much as how I can help.

The secret to happiness is... hard work and a positive attitude. Hard work is based on the drive that is within you. The harder you work the better off you will be. My dad always told me that no matter how smart I am, there will always be someone that is smarter and where you beat them is by outworking them. I take that advice to everything that I do, sports, school, and life. Positive attitude is just as big because no one can get anywhere being negative. Stay positive at all costs and you will always have a chance. Staying positive and working hard will put you in the position to always be happy because of where you are.

I hate it when... I do not come out on top when I feel like I deserve what I did not get, whether that be a good grade or a game. It proves that nothing can be sure. You just have to do your best to make your chances as high as possible to get what you want.

Where do you think you'll be and what will you be doing 10 years from now? In 10 years I see myself working a job that I got because I worked hard for. I really have no idea what kind of job though. Other than that though, I don't know, there are endless opportunities.

Advice to younger athletes: Work as hard as you can because you can't turn around time, once it's over, it's over. So live in the moment and be the best you can be.
